CONSUMERS

10.1. The Shop will be liable to the User who is a Consumer for the lack of conformity of the product with the sales contract effective at the time of product delivery and disclosed within two years from that moment, unless the expiry date of the product specified by the Shop is longer.

10.2. A product will be in conformity with the contract if its following aspects are in conformity with the contract, in particular:

(1) the description, type, quantity, quality, completeness and functionality and, in the case of goods with digital components, the compatibility, interoperability and availability of updates;

(2) suitability for a specific purpose for which it is needed by the Consumer, of which the Consumer has notified the Shop no later than at the time of concluding the sales Contract and which has been accepted by the Shop.

In addition, in order to be considered in conformity with the sales Contract, a product must:

(3) be suitable for the purposes for which a product of this type is typically used, taking into account applicable regulations, technical standards or good practices;

(4) be available in such quantities and have such characteristics, including durability and safety, and in the case of products with digital components, also functionality and compatibility, as those typical of a product of this type and which the Consumer may reasonably expect, taking into account the nature of the product and the public assurance given by the Shop, its predecessors in title or persons acting on their behalf, in particular in advertising or on the label, unless the Shop demonstrates that:

- it was not aware of such public assurance and, in its reasonable judgement, could not have known about it;
- prior to the conclusion of the contract, the public assurance had been corrected in accordance with the conditions and form in which the public assurance was given, or in a comparable manner;
- the public assurance did not influence the Consumer's decision to conclude the contract;

(5) be supplied with such packaging, accessories and instructions as the Consumer may reasonably expect to be provided;

(6) be of the same quality as the sample or design that the Shop made available to the Consumer prior to concluding the contract, and correspond to the description of such sample or design.

10.3. The Shop will not be liable for the lack of conformity of the product with the contract to the extent referred to in Section 10.2 above, if the Consumer, no later than at the time of concluding the Contract, has been clearly informed that a specific feature of the product deviates from the requirements of conformity with the contract in Section 10.2 above, and has clearly and separately accepted the lack of a specific feature of the product.

10.4. All products offered in the Shop are brand new and may also be covered by a commercial (manufacturer's) warranty.

10.5. The Shop does not offer commercial warranty for the products. If a guarantor provides a quality guarantee for a product, its terms and conditions are presented together with the product. Warranty rights are to be exercised in accordance with the terms and conditions contained in the warranty document accompanying the product.

10.6. If a product does not conform to the agreement, the User-Consumer, may request that the product be repaired or replaced.

The Shop may replace the product when the User demands its repair, or, conversely, repair the product when the User demands its replacement, if the solution selected by the User will not make the product compliant with the Agreement or would require excessive costs on the part of the Shop. If both repair and replacement of the product are impossible or would require excessive costs, the Shop has the right to refuse to bring the product into conformity with the agreement. The costs of repair or replacement, including, in particular, the costs of postage, transport, labour and materials, shall be borne by the Shop.

10.7 The User shall make the product to be repaired or replaced available to the Shop. The Shop shall collect the product from the User at its own expense.

10.8. If the product does not conform to the agreement, the User-Consumer may submit a demand for price reduction or withdraw from the agreement in the following cases:

10.8.1. The Shop has refused to bring the product into conformity with the agreement,

10.8.2. The Shop has failed to bring the product into conformity with the agreement,

10.8.3. The product continues to be in non-conformity with the agreement even though the Shop has tried to bring the product into conformity therewith;

10.8.4. The non-conformity of the product with the agreement is material to such a degree as to justify a demand for price reduction or withdrawal from the agreement without recourse to the remedies set out in clause 10.6. hereof;

10.8.5. The Shop's statements or circumstances clearly indicate that the Shop will not bring the product into conformity with the agreement within a reasonable deadline or without undue inconvenience to the User.

10.9. The reduced price must be in such proportion to the contract price as the value of the non-conforming product remains in relation to the value of the conforming product. The Shop shall reimburse the User the amount of the reduction immediately, but not later than within 14 days of receipt of the demand for price reduction.

10.10. The User may not withdraw from the agreement if the non-conformity of the product with the agreement is immaterial. Non-conformity of the product with the agreement is presumed to be material.

10.11. If only certain products supplied under the agreement are non-conforming, the User has the right to withdraw from the agreement only with respect to those products, as well as with respect to other products purchased by the User along with the non-conforming products, if the User cannot reasonably be expected to agree to retain only the conforming products.

10.12. In the event of withdrawal from the agreement, the User shall immediately return the product to the Shop at the Shop's expense. The Shop shall refund the price to the User immediately, but not later than within 14 days of receipt of the product or proof of its return.

10.13. The Shop shall refund the price using the same method of payment as the one used by the User, unless the User has expressly agreed to a different method of refund that does not incur any costs for the User.

BUSINESSES

10.14. The Shop is obliged to deliver a product free from defects to the User who is not a Consumer.

10.15. The Shop will be liable to the User if the sold item is defective (statutory warranty).

10.16. The Shop will be liable under the statutory warranty if the physical defect is determined within two years following the delivery of the product. A claim for removal of a defect or replacement of a product with a defect-free one expires after one year from the date of determination of the defect. A User who is not a Consumer will lose their rights under the statutory warranty if such User fails to inspect the item after receiving it and fails to immediately notify the Shop of the defect, and in cases where the defect is only found at a later time, if the User fails to notify the Shop immediately after such determination.

10.17. If the product has a defect, the User who is not a Consumer may:

(1) submit a statement on price reduction or withdrawal from the contract, unless the Shop immediately and without undue inconvenience for the User replaces the defective product with a defect-free one or removes the defect. This restriction would not apply if the product had already been replaced or repaired by the Shop, or the Shop had failed to comply with the obligation to replace the product with a defect-free one or to remove the defects. Instead of the removal of the defect offered by the Shop, the User may request a replacement of the product with a defect-free one, or instead of replacing the product, the User may demand the removal of the defect, unless bringing the item into conformity with the contract in the manner chosen by the User is impossible or it would require excessive costs compared with the manner proposed by the Shop. When assessing the excessive costs, the value of the defect-free product, the type and significance of the identified defect, as well as the inconvenience to which other method of satisfaction would expose the User, will be taken into account.

(2) request that the defective product be replaced with a defect-free one or that the defect be removed. The Shop is obliged to replace the defective item with a defect-free one or to remove the defect within a reasonable time without undue inconvenience for the User. The Shop may refuse to satisfy the User's request if bringing the defective product to conformity with the contract in the manner chosen by the User is impossible or, in comparison with the other possible manner of bringing it to conformity with the contract, it would require excessive costs. The Shop may refuse to replace the item with one free from defects or to remove the defect also if the costs of satisfying this obligation exceed the price of the sold item.
